

Bio for Barry Yaremicio

Barry was raised on a mixed farm in north eastern Alberta. He completed a Bachelors degree in Agriculture specializing in Animal Science from the University of Alberta in 1984. After completing university, he started with Alberta Agriculture as a District Agriculturalist in 1985.

For the next three years, he worked in district offices in Lamont, Lac La Biche and Two Hills. He then transferred to the Animal Nutrition Lab in Edmonton and worked as the Lab Nutritionist for three years and then three years as the Provincial Beef Nutritionist.

In 1994, Barry left Alberta Agriculture and worked in the private industry as a nutritionist for UFA and later with a private feed company.

In 2003, he rejoined Alberta Agriculture as a Beef and Forage specialist at the Ag-Info Centre in Stettler. He worked at the Ag-Info Centre until March of 2020.

In 2009 Barry completed a Master's Degree in Animal Nutrition. His research investigated the differences in winter feed waste and quality loss when animals were fed hay, bale silage either unrolled, by bale processor either on the ground or in portable bunks. Chopped silage fed on the ground or bunks was also compared.

In March of 2020, he started Yaremicio Ag Consulting Ltd. as an independent ruminant nutrition and production management consultant.
