

Buyers and Licensed Dealers in Alberta

Licensed Livestock Dealers purchase sheep and lambs from individual producers and arrange for sales and trucking to feedlots. Dealers can usually arrange more economical trucking than individual producers and may be able to sort lambs from several producers into groups to suit various buyers.

Anyone who buys or sells livestock and owns them for less than 30 days requires a Dealer's license under the Livestock Identification and Commerce Act. Also, anyone who acts as an agent in the buying or selling of livestock and makes direct payment to the seller requires a license. Finally, anyone who assists in the buying or selling of livestock by compiling or providing information on livestock that are for sale and who handles the sale proceeds requires a license.

Buyers who own livestock for more than 30 days are not required to obtain a dealer's license. The regulations will specify which public groups such as exhibitions, agricultural societies and 4-H clubs will not require a license to sell livestock. More information, including a searchable database of licensed dealers and agents, is available on the Livestock Inspection Services website (www.lis-alberta.com).
